KERRY ON NEWS

A publication of the Kerry Blue Terrier Club of Central Florida

From the Desk of the President

I am excited about the coming year. We have several new members in the club and that always means a fresh look at old issues and endless possibilities.

Our annual meeting is during the shows in Zolfo Springs. Although not the most convenient place to have a meeting it is where we hold the annual meeting and I would ask that every member make an effort to attend.

If you have not visited the club website recently take a few minutes and do so. Bill MacLeod is doing great things with the site. Check out the Our Advertisers link. This is a place for members to place their Kerry business card or a breeder's page. Nancy Vance has graciously volunteered to help anyone wanting to put together a page for their dogs. Check our hers if you missed it in a pervious issue.

In September of this year the Tampa Bay Kennel Club will be hosting a "Responsibly Ownership Day" in Tampa. I would like for the Kerry Club to set up a booth this year instead of just a few hours with the Terrier Club. We'll talk more about this at the meeting. See you in Zolfo.

Linda

MARCH CHAIRMAN'S REPORT

-- AKC Award Programs Recognize Outstanding Contributions of Both People and Dogs --

New York, NY - Just like the recent Academy Awards, AKC has its own awards programs to recognize the contributions and notable deeds among our dogs and our people.

The AKC Outstanding Sportsmanship Award - founded in 2006 - recognizes the hard work and dedication of our volunteer club members. Each year, the AKC provides an Outstanding Sportsmanship medallion to be awarded based on criteria that a member club selects. Once a recipient has been selected we add their name to the list of winners on the AKC website.

Another distinguished award - established in 1998 - is the Lifetime Achievement Award.

These awards recognize those who have spent a majority of their lives dedicated to the sport and to the dogs. Past honorees have included dog world greats such as Dorothy Nickles, Rachel Page Elliot, Dr. M.

Josephine Deubler, Michelle Billings and Jane Forsyth, just to name a few.

Only AKC member clubs are able to cast a vote for this award. For the first time this year, we have distributed the initial round of ballots to member clubs via e-mail. We ask that you please submit your choices for nominees by May 7th. Clubs may submit one nominee in each of three categories: Conformation, Companion Events and Performance.

Three nominees receiving the most votes in each category will be selected as finalists. Later in the year member clubs get to chose the winner in each category. We look forward to your continued participation in this selection process.

Finally, the award program where we receive the most amazing, heart-felt stories continues to be our AKC Humane Fund Awards for Canine Excellence or "ACE" awards. For the 11th year we will be selecting dogs that have performed exemplary acts in one of five categories: Companion, Law Enforcement, Search and Rescue, Service, and Therapy.

Heroes, like dogs, come in all shapes and sizes. ACE nominees range from skilled assistance dogs to brave law enforcement K-9s, as well as comforting therapy dogs. Each year when we review all of the ACE nominations, it becomes clear the increasingly important role dogs play in our day-to-day lives as well as to protect and serve our nation.

We encourage you to nominate a dog that has touched a life in some way or made the world a better place. The new deadline for submission is June 1st. For more information about ACE or any of AKC's award programs please visit www.akc.org. We look forward to recognizing the people and dogs that have touched our lives.

Sincerely,

Ron Menaker

CATARACTS

Don't wait until they're "ripe"

"Back in the 'old days'"

was not done until the cataracts were "ripe. This was a valid recommendation before effective anti-inflammatory drugs and ultrasonic microsurgical techniques were available. Decades ago "a little functional vision" was considered successful surgery. The success rate was only 50-60% and vision was farsighted at best. Waiting until the cataracts were ripe was a reasonable approach. The patient was blind. What was there to lose?

Today, we have effective medical therapies and microsurgical instruments specifically for cataract removal. Surgery is performed under a microscope, through a 3 mm incision. A foldable artificial lens is implanted to replace the cataract and normal vision is restored. The success rate approximates 95%. It is imperative to recognize that the more advanced the cataract is the lower the success rate.

CATARACTS

Early assessment is necessary. The majority of cataracts will not need surgery because they will not develop sufficiently to cause blindness. However, if cataracts are progressing (as determined by slit lamp microscopy) the earlier the cataract is removed the more likely the eye will regain and maintain normal vision. We should not wait until a cataract is "ripe"; we should not wait until "the other eye develops it"; we should not wait until the patient is blind. It is important to assess a cataract as soon as it is noted: to control any uveitis, to determine the best time for cataract surgery, and to inform and prepare the owner for the procedure. Early surgical planning and proper patient preparation help achieve maximum success--normal vision.

CATARACTS

What are cataracts?

A cataract is a change in the clear lens inside the eye. The lens becomes crystallized and opaque. As the opaque areas (cataract) get larger, more and more of the image becomes distorted until vision is significantly decreased.

What causes cataracts?

There are several causes of cataracts including injury to the eye, other diseases of the eye, internal diseases of the patient (especially-diabetes), and aging changes. However, the most common causes among dogs are inherited factors. These vary from one breed to another in how they are inherited, at what age and how quickly they develop and how much they affect vision.

What treatment is there for cataracts?

No medication will keep cataracts from becoming worse or cause a cataract to "clear-up". Medical treatment (usually eye drops) is often used to control the inflammation caused by the cataract or to open the pupil to increase vision.

Removal of the cataract (surgery) is still the only method of improving vision in a patient with cataracts. Whether or not cataract surgery would be helpful for an individual patient depends upon many factors. Differences between a human eye and a dog's eye are considered in determining if cataract surgery is advisable for your pet.

Normal dog vision is not the same as normal human vision. Dogs do not see 20/20 as we do but more like 20/100 and therefore do not see detail or colors well. A dog's superior hearing and smell help it compensate for this difference.

A dog's lens is much larger than a human lens and cataracts are usually much more advanced before vision is affected. A dog's eye develops much more inflammation after cataract surgery than a human eye. This must be well controlled for good results.

Before cataract surgery the eyes need to be evaluated carefully. Problems within the eye must be controlled before surgery is considered. Certain laboratory tests detect other internal medical problems which may require treatment. Surgery is performed under general anesthesia (gas with oxygen).

Pet owners also need to consider the benefits of improved vision. Some dogs function very well with limited vision using their smell and hearing. Others need useful vision to function well. Each patient is different.

Good vision is obtained in approximately 90-95% of patients after cataract surgery. Best results occur when the patient is monitored very closely, medicated as scheduled and evaluated regularly after surgery. The surgeon can explain the specific details of your pet's surgery.
